Amazon kindle can' t books

"Was. I updated and pushed Went to the site and under the Devices tab I made my iPhone the default device by clicking the elipsis button next to my iphone. After doing so, Sync started working immediately as expected. I checked Sync). When the Kindle finds it, it will start downloading it - just the sea for the title of the book. If the problem is that your phone/tablet app won't sync with your kindle, try deleting and reinstalling the app on your phone or tablet. I'm guessing there's some cache on the phone/phone. It seems like almost no one manages their books on their computers. Isn't it easy? Download to your computer where you can keep a million books if you want, all are easily held in folders and subfolders, just how you want it, not how almighty Amazon deems it. Or use a flat land type of organization where things are tagged so you can place a title in more than one category. Of course none of this

control is available on portable devices and if it's limited to their storage capabilities then most of us don't blow $1000 on a devalued phone that would be worth that soon 1/3. Once you attach a USB cable to your computer and attach your tablet/tablet to your computer. How hard is it? Place a folder/subfolder system on your computer similar to your portable device so you can keep track of everything and sync things with the backup program if you want. Isn't it easy to manage your life on 24-30 screens instead of 5-7 screens? And who buys books/music/movies? Millions are online free on torrent sites and free download sites. Only one Apple fan can possibly be so dense as to flush your money down the toilet by buying anything online so telling the world. For the funny book that's good, mention it on social media or send donations directly to the author showing your appreciation. Because you know that 95% of the books written these days are regetered drive. As for movies, think back and ask yourself how many hours you've spent watching them and what good it did you. If you're a thinking person you'll come to a very sobering, stark conclusion. Almost no one benefited us. They are a pathetic excuse for fleeing we use way too much. And its only getting worse and worse as people don't face realty in their lives. Often your internet is biting is the only thing that people can wake up to. Above.
